Silver tequilas, or commonly known as “Blanco”, are rarely aged longer than a few weeks. This type is tequila in its purest form and is typically used in mixed drinks and margaritas.

Reposado translates to “rested” and is aged in oak or white oak barrels for at least two months and less than a year. Reposados have a subtle, full-bodied, and complex flavor.

- Hornitos Reposado
- 1800 Reposado

Añejo, or “old” in Spanish, is aged at least 1 year up to 2 or 3 years. These dark tequilas offer a smoother, richer, and more complex flavor than Reposado. Enjoy them on their own or on the rocks.
